International Methanol Vehicle and Fuel Applications Conference and Exposition

The International Methanol Vehicle and Fuel Applications Conference and Exposition will provide a forum to highlight current methanol vehicle developments in China and around the world. Over 1,000 representatives from China's automotive industry, officials from local government and state-owned enterprises, professionals from the finance and investor sector, and representatives of the global methanol industry are expected to attend the event. The two-day conference will also feature an extensive exhibition of methanol fueled vehicles, component suppliers, and fueling infrastructure builders.

The Methanol Institute, the Expert Committee for Methanol Vehicle Promotion of the China Ministry of Industry and Information Technology, the China Internal Combustion Engine Society, and the China Association of Automobile Manufacturers invite you to join us.

The conference and exhibition are free of charge for all international participants, and volunteers will be provided to assist you with registration, visas, hotel accommodations, and travel, including all airport transfers.
